ALF-1UN-JOR-55g

Product Name *

Alfajor JORGITO Negro Dulce de Leche with Chocolate Coating, 55g

Description *

An alfajor is a biscuit sandwich with a sweet filling and different types of covering—your parents and your grandparents might have eaten, Jorgito is as real a treat as it gets. Not overly complicated or fancy, this snack is covered in fine dark chocolate with a crumbly, sponge-cake like cover, with milk confiture/dulce de leche in between. Chocolate, sponge cake, and caramel: the right type of alfajor if you know your way around Argentine treats.

Dulce de leche is a spread made with milk, sugar, and vanilla extract. After the process of caramelizing milk and adding the other two ingredients, you get this tasty, soft, and brown-ish spread.

Of course, there are some variations, like it happens with every food: more or less sweet, softer or harder, darker or lighter. These variations exist for two reasons. First, for the personal taste of people. And second, it might be better for it to be harder or softer depending on how we're going to use it. But we'll get into that later...
